Captain Phelan's Disclosures. KANSAS CITY, Jan. 11 .- In connection with the recent attempt against the life of Captain Thomas Phelan in New York, Frank P. Clark, who wrote the interview published in the Journal here, which led to the difficulty, stated to an Associated Press representative to-night, that in the interview. The true status of the case was concealed, but it came so near the truth as to lead to a war among the dynamiters, Phelan, he says, was one of ten men sent from this country to kill Informer Carey. He made an effort to save the steamer Queen as described. The dynamite, however, was placed in that vessel, not through wantoness, but by mistake, to blow up Carey, who was expected to sail in her.

The inforn ant also gave the name of an Irish-American who organized the attempt, about two months ago, to blow up the Parliament building in Quebec,

New Jersey Pottery Troubles. TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 11,-The operatives and potters talked all day of the latest proposition by the manufacturers, namely, to accept English wages plus the protective tariff of 55 per cent. The unanimous sentiment was against the proposition unless the manufacturers would add to the tariff the consul fees, brokerage, Custom-house dues, insurance, etc., which English importers have to pay in addition to the tariff. The operatives demand the appointment of a Board of Arbitration to investigate whether the reduction is necessary to the welfare of the manufacturers. Should the appointment of the board be not agreed to by the manufacturers within the next four days the operatives will declare it a lock-out and begin drawing upon the funds of the Knights Salvation Army Becoming Aggressive. WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 11 .- Plymouth. three miles from here, to day was the scene of a most exciting contest between the borough authorities and the Salvation Army. The Council hed forbidden the playing of mus c in the streets on Sunday, and Captain Saith, the woman leader of the Salvationists, in defiance, appeared this afternoon with ests. eral officers a rested the woman. A riot oc-curred the populace siding with the army. The officers drew their pistols and finally took the prisoner to the lockup. Burgess Denney, however, fearing trouble, released her. A meeting of the Council was held, and it decided to let matters rest for to-day, but will enforce the order in the future.

Coffee Confesses the Murder of the Mc-Mullens in Montgomery County.

Special to the Sentinel. CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 11 .- John Coffee, who murdered James McMullen and wife last Wednesday night and then burned the house in which they fived to conceal the crime, was captured last night and taken back to the place where he committed the deed. Marshal Ensminger went out to the place to day and brought him to | Was the city. This evening he made a confession of his terrible crime and said that he killed them with a stick of stove wood. He did it to obtain the money that he supposed McMullen had. He says he only got twenty-five cents and some minor articles of wearing apparel, which first led people to suspicion him. This is one of the most dastardly murders ever perpetrated in this county, and the excitement in the immediate neighborhood runs high. It is supposed that he had an accomplice. McMullen and wife were well-to-do people and respected by all.

Mine No. 5, at Straitsville, on Fire-The Syndicate Threaten to Take a Position They Already Occupy.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 11.-The Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company discovered this morning that Mine No. 5, at Straitsville, was on fire, having been fired on the night previous. The mine has not been in operation for some time, though it is one of the largest in the country, having a capacity of about 125 cars per day. Entrance was gained to the mine by removing about fifteen feet of earth and blocks, which had been used in closing an old entrance. No trouble resulted, as the perpetrators were not discovered in the act of firing the mine. The reports are that some people who endeavored to go near the mine to night were fired upon, but no person was hart. This is one of the mines which was fired at another place some two months ago. The Coal and Iron Company are so enraged over the affair that they announce their determination to put themselves on the offensive rather than occupy the position of the detensive in the fight, which has to be continued. Signal lights are reported as seen to-night in the direction of Haydenville, but no particulars have been received.

Bailroad Accident. JACKSONVILLE, Fla , Jan. 11 .- An accident occurred on the Pensacola and Atlantic Railroad, yesterday forenoon, between Chipley and Boniface. A number of persons were seriously injured. The passenger train, with two Pullman coaches for this city, was followed by a freight. At the locality indicated the train broke in two, and the Pullmans were left standing on the track. They had just rounded a curve, so that the freight train could not be seen, and before it could be flagged it came dashing around the point, struck the rear Pullman, telescoping the two cars and making a complete wreck. The following are the injured: R. A. Durkee, of St. Paul, Minn., knee cut; George Sharp, of Covington, Ky., hand crushed and internally injured; W. H. Riley, of Binghamton, N. Y., hand and arm crushed; F. S. Mc-Elfresh, Pullman conductor, head and arm badly cut; Hinto A. P. Helper, of Jacksonwille, ankle out of joint and badly bruised; Mrs. Askew, St. Paul, Minn., knee sprained and head bruised. Of the injured all but Helper continued on their way.

Good News for Barbers.

[Philadelphia Lettter in the Chicago Tribune.] A round and absolutely hairless face is the newest wrinkle in fashionable society. For the present the mode is confined to the most exclusive sets, but of course it will only be a few months until the fashion is taken up by the aspiring youths of every circle. The smooth faces of the young gallants are intended to harmonize with the classical roles of their fair and intellectual companions. The Romans, these youths may well argue, ever since the time of Scipio Africanus, who was the first of his illustrious nation to employ a barber every day, considered the beard a sign of barbarity.

Dynamiters' Threats.

CAL WAGNER'S COLLAPSE.

The Last Lay of the Old Minstrel Hatches a Dead Failure.

| Atlanta Constitution. ] Last night about 11 o'clock a very tall man, cleanly shaven and wearing a stylish suit of black clothes a high, glossy beaver, entered the alleged gentleman's saloon at the Union Passenger Depot, closely followed by several men, whose gaudy beavers indicated that they too belonged to the burnt-cork profession. The tall man was Cal Wagner-then unhappy Cal, for his brow was wrinkled with

"Gi'mme my money! Go off!" exclaimed Cal Wagner. "I want my money!" exclaimed the man.

"Turn me loose!" answered Cal.
"I won't do it till I get my money!" answered the minstrel. "Here! policeman!" he exclaimed, motioning to officer Scarborough. "Arrest this man!" The officer refused to make the arrest unless the required papers were secured, and, scowling on everything and everybody, Cal Wagner entered a State road train then in A Constitution man asked what the matter was, but Calvin refused to articulate.

The scribe then pressed his way to the East Tennessee Depot, where the troups was waiting for a belated train and cracking jokes in the meantime. "Aw! don't say nuthin' 'bout it," said

"Just say we disbanded at Rome. Poor business, and don't pay." 'Constitution said 'twaz er po' show," remarked another. "Didn't we keep 'm yel'n all the time?"

asked another. "Yes, but the people swear by the Constitution, said the man with the "armonious" voice.

"Dear mother, meet me with a pair of pantaloons and a coat. I have a hat," was the melancholy wail from behind the bass fiddle. "I wish I had my overcoat," whispered the man with the last year's joke.

As the scribe withdrew the party was "I'm a gitting old and feeble now, I can not work no more," or words to that effect.

Cal Wagner goes to Syracuse and most of the members of his company go to Chicago. The men say they were paid off and furnished transportation home.

Jones and His Cat.

New York Mail and Express, 1 Jones is a member of an up-town club and a bachelor. His fondness for that species of animal known as the feline mewsical mover is only exceeded by his shyness toward designing females. Everybody on Jones' block knew Jones' cat, and ontwardly respected him (it was a tom cat) for the blue ribbon he wore around his neck and his foxed ears, but inwardly they cherished intense hatred to-ward the animal. Jones was deaf, and had never tried to dream sweet dreams while the back yard cat-orchestra discoursed music to the lurid moon. He went to sleep after carefully taking a night cap and snored clean through the night without a libretto to in-terpret feline moonlight opers. It is said he loved cats even when a small "kid" and slept with one in his little trundle-bed, from which habit he was scarcely weaned when he grew up.

Jones asserted that his Tom cat never oined the back-yard chorus, and was ready to make war on any neighbor who hinted such an idea.

On balmy days the cat would go out on the front stoop and pretend to doze. There he would see from between his half closed eyelids the next door neighbor shake his fist at him and the small boy on the block toy feelingly with a stone. But he only purred harder and smiled a catacornered grin from the left side of his mouth. He knew he was safe before his master's door, and loved the excitement his appearance pro-

Finally it was whispered around on the block in angry gatteral tones that Jones' Tom cat led the nightly back-yard serenade; that he mewed louder, jumped further and scratched harder than any other four cats combined.

"It is not to be expected
That a scaffold will be erected
To hang Old Jones' Tom cat;
We've too much rope for that,"

The more the antipathy of Jones' cat outwardly demonstrated itself on the block the more Jones was determined to keep the cat. Vain Jones! Necessity is the mother of invention.
